

AND HE SHALL BE CALLED

It seems that Antoine Pépin positioned his animal traps too close to the traps of a particular Indian so the Indian attacked and stabbed Antoine fourteen times and left him for dead.

Amazingly, Antoine was able to crawl to the hut of an old Indian woman, who nursed him back to health.

Sometime later, the Indian and he met at the Trading Post where they recognized each other and a fight ensued. Antoine killed the Indian.

The angry members of the tribe set out to find Antoine and when they caught up with him, he surrendered and was brought before the chief. After relating this story to the Chief, and showing him his scars, the Chief released him.

Thus, when Antoine returned to his home and village, he became known as Antoine

PÉPIN DIT LACHANCE
“Pépin say the lucky one”